Some people struggle on separating vision from goals and I firmly believe that they can and should be two very different things.

The vicious behavior is not done without conscience, but, in a way, alongside it.